Cameron is an associate with Bryan & Company's litigation group, where his practice encompasses a broad range of civil litigation matters. Cameron regularly advises on construction litigation matters (including liens, breach of contract, and enforcement). His additional areas of focus include the enforcement of security, bankruptcy and insolvency, collections, creditors' rights, estate matters, and commercial litigation generally.

Cameron's focus is on providing thorough, high-quality work in a cost effective and results-oriented manner with an emphasis on the early resolution of disputes when possible. He has appeared as counsel before all levels of court in Alberta, including the Court of Appeal.

During law school, Cameron volunteered with several pro-bono projects including as a student assistant with the Dalhousie Legal Aid Service and the Access to Justice Clinic. He also volunteered as an advocate with the Student Advocacy Service and worked as a summer research assistant with the Law and Technology Clinic. Cameron currently volunteers with Student Legal Services at the University of Alberta.
